Frequently Asked Questions:

What is the price after the first year?

- The yearly price for hosting remains the same. Yes, there could be a price change but hosting prices have been dropping, not going up. You do need to pay your domain name fees after the first year. These fees are usually less than $10.00 per year.*

What if you cancel service before the end of the first year?

- You are not on a long-term contract, so you can cancel at any time. If you cancel during the first year or during any year we re-calculate your pricing as if you were paying month to month. If you cancel during the first year we will add the domain registration and setup fee back into the price and send a refund check for the remaining. If you cancel after the first year we simply recalculate as if it were monthly payments and refund the difference.

To get your domain name at no charge through this offer the domain must be registered, for You, by us.

- You own the domain we simply do the registration for you. The free registration offer refers to domains ending with .com, .US, .biz, .info, .net, .org, .ws, and .name. If you already own a domain you may use the offer to add another domain name or extend your existing registration (some restrictions apply - ask for details).
- After the first year you must pay for the domain registration. We will again renew the registration for you if you like. You pay us only what it costs us. We make no profit on domain registration.

The domain names listed above usually are less than $10.00. Some may be slightly higher after taxes are added.

The options listed are either included in the server setup or may be installed through the user control panel. Some add-in programs such as the shopping cart, bulletin board, and chat rooms are open source (FREE) programs. Each has it's own license and you must accept the terms of the license.
